

CMESG 2003 scrapbook

The hike to Cape Split

We climbed under trees, and over mud, until we reached the headland, then, after looking at the spectacular view that David had promised us, it was time for a picnic!

The return trip was easier, and we were soon back to where we started. But several of us couldn't resist getting our feet wet before driving home. What was it that deserved such close scrutiny down there?

Text and photos by Irene Percival.

